

OUR SOLDIER TRIBUTE

Memorial About Completed And Will Soon be Set Up

IS UNUSUALLY ATTRACTIVE

Work on the Soldiers Memorial monument, of this town, the base of which is being prepared by C. Frank Davidson, of Wilmington, who will also "set up" the structure, is about completed and awaits only the setting of the day of erection. Practically the only work remaining undone is the inscribing of the names on the granite panel of the super-base, it being necessary to communicate with the War Department for positively correct data on some of the names and the complete lists of the boys who made the great sacrifice in the late war is somewhat delayed.

The monument is unusually attractive. It will stand in the central square of Middletown, at the intersection of the two main streets.

It will consist of a circular concrete base about two feet high and five feet in diameter. On this will rest a granite base three and one-half feet square with a panel on the side for the inscription. There will be the names and the service ranks of all the boys who died in the service. This block will be of Chester granite.

Above is a simple metal shaft of great dignity, surmounted with a "spread eagle" and with two ornamental arms to carry electric lights. The shaft is of bronze effect, this being produced in the finish. The metal work is produced by J. L. Mott Company, Trenton, N. J.

It is expected that as soon as the complete list of names is received the work will be put into condition to set up quickly as it is thought dedication of the shaft will be held until the date of some anniversary of an event of importance in the history of the state and the town.

The three months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Pierce died at the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington, Wednesday morning. Until a few hours before death it had shown marked signs of improvement, and the sudden change for the worse was quite a shock to the mother, who arrived at the hospital before it passed away.

Drowns While Bathing With Son

Seized with cramps while swimming in the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal off Lorewood Grove, Saturday evening, with his 11-year-old son, Harry J. Woods, 38 years old, Ninth and Wilson streets, Chester, Pa., was drowned. Woods and his son had just arrived at the Grove, being members of a party of men from Wilmington who had gone there on an automobile trip. The boy and father entered the stream together. The former swam back to the shore and was surprised to find his father had disappeared. The body was recovered with difficulty by men at the place diving for it. Woods is survived by his wife and four children, the eldest being the 11-year-old boy.

Contractor Begins Work

The Peninsular Construction Company has begun work of grading the streets under a contract recently awarded that company for the laying of concrete streets. The original contract was for an eighteen foot street on Main and Broad streets, and when that was finished the tax-payers of the town at an election voted to have the streets paved from curb to curb. It is expected that the work will be finished in four weeks.

A group of six plays will be given at the Opera House by the Mattice Stock Company during next week. New scenery, costumes and reasonable prices. Don't miss them.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

Next Monday, Sept. 6th, being Labor Day, and a legal holiday, the banks and post office will be closed.

Dirt roads in Delaware are reported to have suffered heavy damage from the frequent rains this month.

The excessive rains of the past two weeks have caused great damage to the corn and tomato crops of this section.

With the forced release of sugar stocks through tightened bank credit, Department of Justice officials this week forecast a further tumble in sugar prices.

A "back-to-the-farm" movement is under way in Wilmington, according to Josiah Marvel, a local attorney, who received 127 responses to an advertisement for a farmhand.

Mrs. Sarah E. DeShane, mother of Bryon Bouchelle, of Chesapeake City, Md., celebrated her 95th birthday on Thursday last and attended the Firemen's Carnival in Elkton on that evening.

Mr. J. E. Coffin has purchased the dwelling on North Broad street, now in tenure of W. G. Lockwood, from Mrs. J. P. Algire. Mr. Coffin will take possession October 1st. Consideration private.

Oystermen who have gone over the bars at the mouth of Broadkill River, say that the crop is not as plentiful as usual. Excessive rains of the summer is the only reason ascribed for the death of the bivalve.

List of letters remaining unclaimed in the post office for week ending Aug. 20: Mrs. Geo. Dockerty, Mrs. Anna C. Faulkner, Mrs. Charlotte Hayes, Miss May Shockey, Mr. Forest G. Farr, Mr. H. D. Longer, Mr. William T. Mills, Mr. Walker Morgan, Mr. C. E. Shrankman.

We must again call attention to the fact that we cannot publish any news articles or communications unless they are signed by the writer. We are always glad to publish anything of news value but the writers name must be signed, not for publication but for our record.

Final plans for the Harvest Moon carnival to be given by the ladies of the New York Century Club for the benefit of the building fund, are completed. The committees are hard at work, the spirit of whole-hearted co-operation is manifest, and everything points to a successful week beginning September 25.

Indications are that there will be a banner grape crop in the Smyrna-Clayton grape belt this season, but the growers are concerned over the scarcity of pickers. Growers expect to harvest tons of grapes. Some vineyards were hit by the hail storms last spring but other vineyards escaped and it is from these big crops are expected.

So far it appears the Government has not selected a postmaster for Townsend to succeed Ernest Weldon, the present incumbent, who tendered his resignation more than two months ago, in order to take up farming. There were three applicants for the position when a civil service examination was held at Dover about five weeks ago.

Smyrna Firemen are now in the midst of their sixth annual Carnival and crowds of people are wending their way to the school grounds every evening. The Carnival did not open until Monday night. Saturday, the opening day scheduled, was called off on account of the rain. To make up for the loss last Saturday night, the Carnival will hold over Monday, Labor Day, and performances will be held both afternoon and evening.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 5TH

The Sunday School will re-open on Sunday after several months of vacation. We trust that one good result of a good vacation will be a good attendance. We have a capable body of teachers, all deeply interested in their work; and we hope that the parents will realize that we have the welfare of the children at heart, and that irregularity and tardiness in attendance and carelessness in the preparation of the assigned lessons are just as disastrous to good results here as they would be in day school. The parents are the only people who can thoroughly rectify these defects and we feel that if only they realize this, they will understand how much we need their hearty and earnest co-operation.

The door of St. Anne's Church is open all day, a continual witness of God's love and His presence. Cultivate the habit of stopping in to rest and pray and talk with God.

The rector of St. Anne's is ready at all times to respond to any call for spiritual help from any one who needs his services, whether a member of the parish or not.

To date, the Parish has paid the following amounts to Diocesan Missions, $50.00; to General Missions, (National Wide Campaign) $140.00; to Church Pension Fund, $94.06; Day Nursery and Hospital, $26.86.

Quite a few of those who pledged through the Nation-Wide Campaign, have not paid their pledges for Missions and we would like to hear from them in order to send in to headquarters the amounts due. The high cost of living is presenting some real financial problems. The high cost of living is no respecter of persons. The cost of service and materials to sustain the church has increased just as this cost has advanced in homes and in business. The Vestry has practised economies whenever it seemed feasible, but the increase in expenses cannot be prevented and must be met by an increase in revenues or at least in having all those who have pledged to the support of the church, pay their pledges.

Corn Canneries Running

The corn canneries in this neighborhood are running full blast, and for the next six weeks they will be busier than ever, there is every evidence of a large crop of sugar corn. Many of the farmers are reporting the early plantings are better than usual. Seven large canneries located in Middletown, Odessa, Mt. Pleasant, Armstrong's, Townsend and Blackbird take care of the product of more than 3,000 acres, and at the price being paid ($20 per ton) it will mean a large return of money in the late summer when money is needed to harvest the large crop of field corn which is now in prospect. On many of the farms the sugar corn crop will yield four tons per acre, which when the fact is considered that the work is done early when the days are longer, and the food value of the fodder is considered, it is proving a good paying crop. There has been perhaps a dozen new silos built here during the past few weeks, these will be filled with silage from the sugar corn fodder, and makes a milk producing feed of the highest value.

Labor Day Dance

The young men of Smyrna are making preparations for their second annual Labor Day Dance, which will be held in the Twentieth Century Club on Monday evening, September 6th. This holiday attraction last year was considered by the large crowd that attended as the best dance given in the lower part of the State during the early fall and winter season. Several new attractions are promised for this year and the affair is expected to be well patronized by the young people for miles around. Music will be furnished for the occasion by a well-known Wilmington orchestra. The committee on arrangements consists of Lyman J. Scott, William C. Hurlcock, F. Earl Keith, Davis H. Bell, George C. Scotton and Robert Y. Wallen, Jr.

Serious Motorcycle Accident

While returning to his home at Mt. Pleasant, Wednesday evening, after having attended a moving picture performance in Middletown, Beverly Pleasanton, aged 20 years, was probably fatally injured by being thrown from a motorcycle and Robert Ratledge, Jr., who was riding with him sustained a broken collar bone.

The accident occurred about one mile north of town, when the motorcycle struck the carriage of Mr. Ezra Evans, completely demolishing it, and throwing Mr. and Mrs. Evans to the ground. Pleasanton and his companion were also thrown to the stone road. The young men were brought to the office of Dr. D. W. Lewis, where an examination was made, showing that Pleasanton was suffering from a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain; he was later removed to Delaware Hospital, in an unconscious condition. Ratledge was taken to his home, near Mt. Pleasant, after having the fracture reduced.

OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many Such Cases.

Cairo, Ill.—"Sometime ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had had displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."

—Mrs. J. R. MATTHEWS, 3311 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letter, and many others like it, simply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

PLAN TO REMEDY IGNITION PARTS

Expert Discusses This Important Section of Motorcar's Nervous System.

EXAMINE ALL CONNECTIONS

Make Sure That All Wires Are Tight and That Insulation Is Not Worn Off at Any Spot, Thus Causing Short Circuit.

The best way to locate any electrical trouble is to begin at one end of the ignition system and make a series of tests in regular order. Begin first with the spark plugs under suspicion, writes W. H. Stewart, Jr., president of the Stewart Automobile school, in an exchange.

Moisture on the exposed part of the porcelain will often cause the engine to misfire, but this trouble on a wet day may be obviated by greasing the defective porcelain. Including defective porcelain, other frequent causes of spark plug trouble may be traced to oil or particles of carbon collecting between the points and sooting of the porcelain; points out of adjustment or burned away. Ordinarily the spark plug should be adjusted to about the thickness of an old worn dime, dependent upon the ignition system, carburetor adjustment and design of the engine.

Look at Distributor Case. When you have eliminated the spark plug, examine all wiring and terminal connections, making sure that all wires are tight and that the insulation isn't worn off at any place, thus causing short circuits. Next open the distributor case and see if there is any dirt or carbon dust. If the trouble is here it can be eliminated by wiping with a clean rag. But if it is yet undiscovered then perhaps the misfiring is caused by the contact points being pitted. These should be cleaned and adjusted very accurately according to instructions of the manufacturer. Also make sure that the tappet spring has not weakened or been broken. Remember that this spring is under a constant strain and it will wear.

Cause of Serious Missing. Moisture or grease on the surface of the distributor housing will sometimes cause very serious current skips across the surface of this foreign matter instead of going through its regular channels. The remedy is to wipe off the surface. The presence of moisture may be explained by the fact that it is drawn in with the air through the radiator or may condense on the surface on a damp day. The grease often collects from the oil spray thrown out by the engine.

The ignition system is a delicate assembly and it is up to you to keep your eye constantly upon it. Little attentions like these give you a smooth running engine and help you to eliminate expensive repairs.

SPRING LEAVES NEED OILING

Thorough Cleaning and Lubrication of Various Parts Make Car Ride Easier.

In speaking of care of automobiles Mr. E. B. Dale, who is in charge of the automobile course at Colorado agricultural college, says, "People will find that a little care with the springs of their car will make riding easier by many per cent. All it takes is care. Anyone who is getting his interior self shook up and turned over every time he takes his car out will find this advice worth while: Remove the springs, take them apart and remove all dirt and rust which is between the spring leaves. Polish the parts of the leaves which rub together. Assemble, using plenty of graphite grease between the leaves. The result is gratifying."

HARBINGER OF SPRING.

Spring comes first to the milliner and second to the florist. Perhaps four months afterward the public perceives her. Yet moralists and ethical students have failed to pay tribute to the two who, above all others, keep alive our faith in spring. How heartening it is to see hats of tulle and straw pressing through the blizzard, wild roses smiling from a snow-weighted bough! In the Valentine month, before the swamps have shown

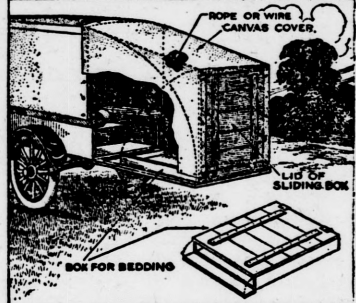

REAR OF AUTOMOBILE FORMS CAMPING BED

Illustration Shows Some of Advantages Obtainable.

Spacious Hinged-Back Swings Down to Form Very Comfortable Open-Air Compartment—Canvas Covers Can Be Attached.

The system of camping by automobile shown in the drawing has many of the advantages to be obtained by using a trailer, without a trailer's disadvantages. Unlike the trailer, it is not found covered with dust after a hard day's travel, yet it is comfortable and roomy.

A light truck body is mounted on the automobile chassis. A spacious hinged-back swings down to form a sleeping porch, which is made secure by chains. Upon the inside surface of this top is built a shallow box; the forward end of it opens out flat, and the top side swings up to form the back end of the sleeping compartment. A canvas cover can be attached, as shown, preferably with automobile curtain fasteners. Bedding is laid out on the hinged floor, extending some little distance into the body of the car. In the morning the bedding is quickly put away in the flat box, and the whole rear compartment is readily folded up into the body under the roof of the car body.—F. F. McClintock, New York, in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AUTOMOBILE MAINTENANCE

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on lubrication.

Two-thirds of the doctors in the United States own motorcars.

Do not allow the engine to race or to run when the car is standing.

The horn for a motorcar is offered as the first free accessory 15 years ago.

When it is absolutely necessary to run on a flat tire, keep the tire in soft dirt, if possible.

Running the engine while the car is standing causes a daily waste of 67,000 gallons of gasoline.

About the only satisfactory material for packing a gasoline connection is hemp string and soap.

One of the common troubles encountered in the brake assembly is a tendency to clattering.

Rear wheels are particularly liable to looseness, and this condition induces rapid tire destruction.

The timely repair of even the most insignificant tread cut prevents sand blisters, mud boils and blowouts.

The addition of a little pure flake graphite to the lubricating oil is a help to motors that have seen some wear.

the pussy willow, we may meet white lilac trees and daffodils, crocuses and tulips, violets and iris, by merely peering through a pane. Snows cannot frighten us nor ice dismay. We gaze upon the jocund hats, the living bloom of peach and cherry and know that Primavera is not too long delay.—New York Evening Post.

WEEKS SPANKS FRANKIE

EX-SENATOR John W. Weeks has administered a verbal spanking to Franklin D. Roosevelt which ought to be felt way up under the silk collar of that nice young feller. Roosevelt, whose recent disquisitions on Government have qualified him for the chart class, has been heaping abuse on Elihu Root and Henry Cabot Lodge. "This seems to me a little short of impudence, coming from a man who owes his nomination to Tammany Hall," declares Senator Weeks. "Certainly Mr. Lodge is one of the leading statesmen of this country, and the same is true of ex-Senator Root, who is now on the other side accomplishing a work for the benefit of mankind and the peace of the world which will be so much more potent than anything that has been done by the present Administration in that particular direction that the result will not be comparable. Mr. Roosevelt has been called by his admirers 'a nice young man,' and I have always thought so myself, but that does not license him to sit in judgment on the accomplishments of Mr. Root and Mr. Lodge." And think of having Frankie as Vice President sitting in judgment on the accomplishments of the entire United States Senate. Horrible thought.

NO PEACE WITH COX

It is quite apparent that Governor Cox intends to do one thing if he is elected to the Presidency, even though he may fail in everything else. That is to keep this country in a state of war until the moment shall arrive when the Senate will consent to acceptance of the Wilson league covenant as a part of a treaty of peace. His characterization of Senator Harding's suggestion for an immediate peace with Germany leaves no doubt on that point. Mr. Cox refers to the Harding proposal as "a perfectly perfidious act," and "unthinkable, monstrous proposal," "this dishonorable deed," and an "insult" to the veterans of the war. All those extremes of denunciation he applies to the promise of Senator Harding to make a matter of official record that which every sensible person knows to be a matter of fact—that the United States is at peace with Germany.

BAKER'S HYPOCRISY

SECRETARY of War Baker tries to create the impression that with the United States in the league of nations American armaments could be materially reduced. "If we do not go into the league of nations," he declares, "we must continue to arm. If we are to play a lone hand it must be a strong hand." Let us see about that. Last summer the President, Mr. Baker, and all the rest of them were quite confident that the league covenant would be ratified and the United States would become a member. Whereupon the Secretary of War became very urgent in his recommendations to Congress for an army of about 500,000 men. The Senate refused to ratify the covenant and Congress promptly reduced the proposed army to about 325,000 men. Which is the exact reversal in practice of the theories now propounded by Mr. Baker.

Our Subscribers

It is not a pleasant matter to mention, but subscribers to The Transcript should be considerate enough to remember that in these days everything which goes into the making of a newspaper is just about out of sight. In other words, we cannot turn out a copy of The Transcript which does not cost us more than its subscription price. Subscribers should pay their subscriptions.

A Grateful Letter

It is in trying conditions like that related below by Mrs. Geo. L. North of Naples, N. Y., that proves the worth of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. "Two years ago last summer," she says, "our little boy had dysentery. At that time we were living in the country eight miles from a doctor. Our son was taken ill suddenly and was about the sickest child I ever saw. He was in terrible pain all the time and passed from one convulsion into another. I sent my husband for the doctor and after he was gone thought of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the cupboard. I gave him some of it and he began to improve at once. By the time the doctor arrived he was out of danger."

The Eastern States Land Co.

We have for sale in Northern Kent County, Md., a 200 acre water front farm with about 140 acres of tillable land. The soil is a productive sandy loam in a good state of cultivation. The fine old colonial dwelling has all modern improvements and the other buildings are ample.

The present owner will net about $5,000 this year which represents a high return on the price of the farm. If interested inquire for further details.

The labor situation is causing many farmers to look for small farms of 60 to 100 acres which they can handle without hired help. Because of inquiries, we would like to list several such farms. Address

GET READY FOR School Days

GOODS still high, and worse still, scarce. You have read about cheaper raw materials in cotton, wool, leather, silk, etc. We wish we could say that this meant lower prices right off, But it will take a whole year to manufacture and put on the market the coming lower-priced goods.

But our Mr. Fogel has worked all the harder, and used all his skill and experience to get for our various departments a full line of new Fall stocks of the high quality our trade has always had, and always expects, and that, too, for the lowest possible figures.

This is quite true of the various articles demanded by our School Trade. So we are happy to assure the parents of our Academy scholars that we are offering them this season, despite scarcity and high prices, as choice selections of everything as any scholar can need, both in attire of all kinds and in every article needed in their school work.

FOR GIRLS

Lovely Middy Blouses in all the various colors and designs, Middies of high qualities and elegant shapes. Dresses of many kinds, the latest styles, first class fabrics well made-up. Many kinds of well-made, serviceable Shoes, good for looks and wear also. Fine Hosiery of several makes, including the "Black Cat," so long and favorably known to our patrons. Also all the minor articles of dress required by girl students such as handkerchiefs, collars, gloves, etc.

FOR BOYS

We have a splendid lot of Boys' Suits dressy and strong too—Suits that will stand the rough usage of the school ground and keep presentable. Boys' Blouses and Knickerbockers of handsome, strong, wearing materials suitable for a live Boy's use. Shoes that will not soon kick-out at the toes, but give good service. Caps of many styles and "Black Cat" stockings with triple knees. Besides the other articles the school-boy needs.

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Fogels is famous for being headquarters for School Supplies, everything the scholar needs from pins to satchels, pens, pencils, ink, paper, composition books, "companions," crayons, etc are to be found here.

Inexpensive Perfection in Farm Buildings

Practical experience, no less than scientific test, has definitely settled the fact that the wooden house is dryer and warmer than one built of any other material. It is therefore more healthful and more comfortable. This is just as true of the barns which shelter your stock as of the house which shelters your family.

We can show you a wood-North Carolina Pine—with which you can build your home, barns, sheds, silos, etc., at low cost and with every assurance of complete satisfaction.

If you are interested in up-to-date farm buildings we can get for you free an excellent book which ordinarily retails for $1.00. It contains plans, elevations and details of practically every kind of farm building.

THE CUTTER.

Synopsis.—Writing long after the events described, Jack Calder, Scot farmer of West Inch, tells how, in his childhood, the fear of invasion by Napoleon, at that time complete master of Europe, had gripped the British nation. Following a false alarm that the French had landed, Jim Horscroft, the doctor's son, youth of fifteen, quarrels with his father over joining the army, and from that incident a lifelong friendship begins between the boys. They go to school together at Berwick, where Jim is cock boy from the first. After two years Jim goes to Edinburgh to study medicine. Jack stays five years more at school, becoming cock boy in his turn. When Jack is eighteen Cousin Edie of Eymouth comes to live at West Inch. Jack falls in love at first sight with his handsome, romantic, selfish and autocratic cousin of seventeen. They watch from the cliffs the victory of an English merchantman over two French privateers. Reproached by Edie for staying at home, Jack starts to enlist. Edie tells him to stay. Jack says he will stay and marry her. She acquiesces. Jim comes home. Jack sees Jim kissing Edie. Jack and Jim compare notes and force Edie to choose between them. She chooses Jim. Jack gives up Edie to Jim. A half-dressed shipwrecked foreigner drifts ashore at West Inch. He says he is Bonaventure de Lapp, a soldier of fortune. He goes to live with the Calders. A man of mystery and evidently of high position, he wins all hearts. Jim goes back to his studies in Edinburgh.

"And if he has passed," said I, "why then, of course, he will put up his plate, and have his own house, and we shall be losing our Edie." I tried to make a jest of it, and to speak lightly, but the words still stuck in my throat.

"Poor old Jim!" said she again, and there were tears in her eyes as she said it. "And poor old Jack!" she added, slipping her hand into mine as we walked. "You cared for me a little bit once also, didn't you, Jack? Oh! is not that a sweet little ship out yonder?"

It was a dainty cutter of about 30 tons, very swift, by the rake of her masts and the lines of her bow. She may have been rather less than a quarter of a mile from the shore—so near that I could see a tall man with a peaked cap, who stood at the quarter with a telescope to his eye, sweeping it backwards and forwards along the coast.

"What can they want here?" asked Edie.

"They are rich English from London," said I, for that was how we explained everything that was above our comprehension in the Border counties. We stood for the best part of an hour watching the bonny craft, and then, as the sun was lying low on a cloud bank and there was a nip in the evening air, we turned back to West Inch.

As you come to the farm house from the front you pass up a garden, with little enough in it, which leads out by a wicket gate to the road. On the right of this gate, on the garden side, was a bit of a rocky, which was said to have been made by my father's mother many years before. Well, as we came in through the gate, my eyes fell upon this stone heap, and there was a letter stuck in a cleft stick upon the top of it. I took a step forward to see what it was, but Edie sprang in front of me, and, plucking it off, she thrust it into her pocket.

"That's for me," said she, laughing. But I stood looking at her, with a face which drove the laugh from her lips.

"Who is it from, Edie?" I asked. She pouted, but made no answer. "Who is it from, woman?" I cried. "Is it possible that you have been as false to Jim as you were to me?"

"How rude you are, Jack!" she cried. "I do wish that you would mind your own business."

"There is only one person that it could be from," I cried. "It is from this man De Lapp."

"And suppose that you are right, Jack?"

The coolness of the woman amazed and enraged me. "You confess it," I cried. "Have you, then, no shame left?"

"Why should I not receive letters from this gentleman?"

"Because it is infamous."

"And why?"

"Because he is a stranger."

"On the contrary," said she, "he is my husband."

CHAPTER IX.

The Doings at West Inch.

I can remember that moment so well. I have heard from others that a great sudden blow has dulled their senses. It was not so with me. On the contrary, I saw and heard and thought more clearly than I had ever done before. And the look upon my face must have been strange, for Cousin Edie screamed, and leaving me she ran off to the house. I followed her, and tapped at the window of her room, for I could see that she was there.

"Go away, Jack, go away!" she cried. "You are going to scold me. I won't be scolded! I won't open the window! Go away!"

But I continued to tap. "I must have a word with you," I cried. "What is it, then?" she asked, raising the sash about three inches. "The moment you begin to scold I shall close it."

"Are you really married, Edie?"

"Yes, I am married."

"Who married you?"

"Father Brennan, at the Roman Catholic chapel at Berwick."

"And you a Presbyterian!"

"He wished it to be in a Catholic church."

"When was it?"

"On Wednesday week." I remembered, then, that on that day she had driven over to Berwick, while De Lapp had been away on a long walk, as he said, among the hills.

"What about Jim?" I asked.

"Oh! Jim will forgive me."

"You will break his heart and ruin his life."

"No, no; he will forgive me."

"He will murder De Lapp. Oh, Edie! how could you bring such disgrace and misery upon us?"

"Ah, now you are scolding!" she cried, and down came the window.

I waited some little time and tapped, for I had much still to ask her; but she would not return an answer, and I thought that I could hear her sobbing. At last I gave it up, and was about to go into the house, for it was nearly dark now, when I heard the click of the garden gate. It was De Lapp himself.

But as he came up the path he seemed to be either mad or drunk. He danced as he walked, cracked his fingers in the air, and his eyes blazed like the will-o'-the-wisps. "Voleurs!" he shouted—"voleurs de la garde!"—just as he had done when he was off his head, and then suddenly "En avant! en avant!" and up he came, waving his walking-cane over his head.

He stopped short when he saw me looking at him, and I dare say he felt a bit ashamed of himself.

"Halloo, Jack!" he cried, "I didn't thought anybody was there. I am in what you call the high spirits tonight."

"So it seems!" said I, in my blunt fashion. "You may not feel so merry when my friend, Jim Horscroft, comes back tomorrow."

"Ta, ta, ta!" cried De Lapp. "I see that you know of our marriage. Edie has told you. Jim may do what he likes."

"You have given us a nice return for having taken you in."

"My good fellow," said he, "I have, as you say, given you a very nice return. I have taken Edie from a life which is unworthy of her, and I have connected you by marriage with a noble family. However, I have some letters which I must write tonight, and the rest we can talk over tomorrow when your friend Jim is here to help us."

He stepped toward the door.

"And this was whom you were awaiting at the peel-tower?" I cried, seeing light suddenly.

"Why, Jack, you are becoming quite sharp," said he, in a mocking tone, and an instant later I heard the door of his room close and the key turn in the lock. I thought that I should see him no more that night, but a few minutes later he came into the kitchen where I was sitting with the old folk.

"Madame," said he, bowing down with his hand to his heart in his own queer fashion. "I have met with much kindness in your hands, and it shall always be in my heart. You will accept this small souvenir, and you, also, sir, you will take this little gift which I have the honor to make to you."

He put two paper packets down upon the table at their elbows, and then, with three more bows to my mother, he walked from the room.

His present was a brooch with a green stone set in the middle and a dozen little shining white ones all round it. We had never seen such things before and did not know how to set a name to them but they told us afterward at Berwick that the big one was an emerald and that the others were diamonds and that they were worth more than all the lambs we had that spring. My dear old mother has been gone now this many a year but that bonny brooch sparkles at the neck of my eldest daughter when she goes out into company, and I never look at it that I do not see the keen eyes, and the long, thin nose, and the cat's whiskers of our lodger at West Inch. As to my father, he had a fine gold watch with a double case, and a proud man was he as he sat with it in the palm of his hand, his ear stooping to hearken to the tick. I do not know which was best pleased, and they would talk of nothing but what De Lapp had given them.

"He's given you something more," said I, at last.

"What then, Jack?"

"A husband for Cousin Edie," said I.

They thought I was daft when I said that, but when they came to understand that it was the real truth, they were as pleased as if I had told them that she had married the laird. De Lapp was for all we knew, steady and quiet and well-to-do; and as to the secrecy of it, secret marriages were very common in Scotland at that time, when only a few words were needed to make a man and wife, so nobody thought much of that. The old folk were as pleased, then, as if their rent had been lowered but I was still sore at heart, for it seemed to me that my friend had been cruelly dealt with, and I knew well that he was not a man who would easily put up with it.

CHAPTER X.

The Return of the Shadow.

I woke with a heavy heart the next morning, for I knew that Jim would be home before long, and that it would be a day of trouble. But how much trouble that day was to bring, or how far it would alter the lives of all of us, was more than I had ever thought in my darkest moments.

I had to get up early that morning, for it was just the first flush of the lambing, and my father and I were out on the moors as soon as it was fairly light. As I came out into the passage a wind struck upon my face, and there was the house-door wide open and the gray light drawing another door upon the inner wall. And when I looked again, there was Edie's room open also, and De Lapp's too, and I saw in a flash what that giving of presents meant upon the evening before. It was a leave-taking, and they were gone.

My heart was bitter against Cousin Edie as I stood looking into her room. To think that for the sake of a newcomer she could leave us all without one kindly word or as much as a handshake. And he, too! I was angry and hurt and sore, and I went out into the open without a word to my father, and climbed up on to the moors to cool my flushed face.

When I got up to Corrieuir I caught my last glimpse of Cousin Edie. The little cutter still lay where she had anchored, but a row-boat was pulling out to her from the shore. In the stern I saw a flutter of red, and I knew that it came from her yacht.

I watched the boat reach the yacht, and the folk climb on to her deck. Then the anchor came up, and the wings spread once more, and away she dipped right out to sea. I still saw that little red spot on the deck, and De Lapp standing beside her. They could see me also, for I was outlined against the sky, and they both waved their hands for a long time, but gave it up at last when they found that I would give them no answer.

I stood with my arms folded, feeling as glum as ever I did in my life, until their cutter was only a square, flickering patch of white among the mists of the morning. It was breakfast-time, and the porridge upon the table, before I got back, but I had no heart for the food.

"There's a letter here from him," said my father, pointing to a note folded up on the table. "It was in his room. Maybe you would read it to us."

It was addressed, in big letters, to "The Good People of West Inch," and this was the note which lies before me, all stained and faded, as I write:

My Friends: I didn't thought to have left you so suddenly, but the matter was in other hands than mine. Duty and honor have called me back to my old comrades. This you will doubtless understand before many days are passed. I take your Edie with me as my wife, and it may be that in some more peaceful time you will see us again at West Inch. Meanwhile accept the assurance of my affection, and believe me that I shall never forget the quiet months which I spent with you at the time when my life would have been worth a week at the utmost had I been taken by the Allies. But the reason of this you may also learn some day.

Yours,
BONAVENTURE DE LISSAC,
Colonel des Voltigeurs de la Garde, et aide-de-camp de S. M. l'Empereur Napoleon.

I whistled when I came to these words, written under his name; for though I had long made up my mind that our lodger could be none other than one of those wonderful soldiers of whom we had heard so much, who had forced their way into every capital of Europe, save only our own, still I had little thought that our roof covered Napoleon's own aide-de-camp and a colonel of his Guard.

LONG A PLACE OF WORSHIP

Before the Christian Era Romans Honored Their Gods on the Mountain of Monserrat.

Monserrat, the famous shrine in the Spanish province of Barcelona, illustrates the effect which high mountains have on men. When you climb to the top of a high mountain you feel worshipful and at peace with the universe. Monserrat is an outlying spur of the Pyrenees which stands all alone, splendidly dominating a rich plain. It is one of the most ancient and famous of Catholic shrines. According to legend, many centuries ago an image of the Virgin was found at the top of the mountain, and it was impossible to move the image. Thus it was shown to men that they should build a shrine on Monserrat.

In medieval times it was a shrine of unexcelled beauty and splendor. An emperor came here to kneel and to cover the great Byzantine church with gold. A queen walked up the mountain barefoot. The great and the learned of all the Christian world gathered at Monserrat. Its greatness came to an end in the nineteenth century when the French sacked the shrine and carried away the ornaments.

Now the church has been rebuilt and offers free lodging to the pilgrims who come there still, but the fame and splendor of the place have shrunk. Yet Monserrat will always be a shrine. Before Christ the Romans had a temple of Venus there and before that more than likely savages worshipped their gods on the mountain top.

Worship veritably grows in the soil of Monserrat.

Excelsior.

Don't anchor—put on more sail. The temptation to stop when some point of victory has been gained, to become so satisfied with one achievement that there is little inclination to go farther, is very human, and it is one of the dangers of a success too easily won. The idea that there are no more worlds to conquer is always born of ignorance and not of greatness.

Ideas in Gowns From the Stage

Actresses in Paris Provide Interesting Fashions That Attract Attention.

TAILOR-MADE SUIT POPULAR

Outfit, Although the Most Expensive, Is Quite in the Limeright—Blouse Comes into Its Own Again.

The wide skirt is dying hard in Paris, owing to the popularity of the house of Jeanne Lanvin, who dresses many chic Parisiennes. The fact that it was Lanvin who launched the hip extended full skirt and that she has persisted in exploiting it is doubtless the reason why certain women continue to accept that style, writes a prominent Paris fashion correspondent.

This fashion is noted especially among the actresses in Paris, some of the most important of whom are dressed by Lanvin. This is partly due to their fidelity to the dressmaker, as Orchid organdie dress embroidered in rose made over a black taffeta foundation.

It is quite the custom in Paris for a woman to be dressed by one house exclusively. This gives her a marked individuality and she is looked upon as an exponent of the fashion creations of that particular house. To be seen in costumes from another dressmaker would be almost like a betrayal of confidence.

One of the most popular French actresses playing light comedies is Jeanne Renouard. This actress has been wearing Lanvin's clothes for several seasons, and in one of her late Paris Turns to Tailored Suit.

The tailored suit, which is about the most expensive costume in Paris, is again becoming popular. During the war period the women of Paris were deprived of man-tailored street costumes, owing to the fact that all masculine workers in dressmaking shops were mobilized. Now the tailored suit comes back into fashion with all the force and interest of a novelty.

For this reason the blouse, from a standpoint of fashion, is again coming into its own. Considerable interest is manifested in the simple tailored blouse with fluted collar and revers. Some of these new shirt style blouses are high necked, with a collar somewhat in Peter Pan shape, but falling from the top of a straight neckband. This style of collar was launched by Lanvin in connection with a number of her tailored suits and blouses, and neckwear manufacturers have taken it up.

The wide ribbon sash-girdle is still one of the most popular trappings. Practically all the leading dressmaking houses as well as the milliners are roles she wore only the white-skirted hip extended models so characteristic of that house. It must be admitted that dresses of this type are eminently suitable to a coquettish and dashing young woman of slender, graceful build. Renouard looks so admirable in her Lanvin dresses that one cannot doubt that she greatly aids in the continuance of this fashion.

Organdie Over Black Taffeta.

A rose-colored organdie dress, made up over a hip extended foundation of black taffeta, is very beautiful. The organdie is a slip-over-the-head, chemise style, with considerable fullness on the hips. The dress opens in a wide panel down the front to show the black foundation. About the waist is a black taffeta ribbon sash tied in a simple square-looped bow at the back. This ribbon has a border of rose-colored satin, matching exactly the tone of the organdie. Interesting ornamentation, in the form of a flat applique and embroidered roses of precisely the same tone, appears on the front of the skirt. On the black taffeta there is likewise a rose-colored applique which enlivens the rather somber foundation. This dress has the low, round neck and short sleeves. Lanvin is making many of her dresses in this style.

Renouard wore with this dress the "finest of tete-de-negre stockings and black satin slippers. She also wore long mousquetaire gloves of black kid, finished with points of leather at the edge of the wrinkled top.

Dignity of Line and Design.

In the same role Renouard wore a black taffeta frock, very simple in design, wide skirted, and with a bodice fitting her slender figure quite snugly. The feature of this frock is a big feather duster in white, developed in white ribbon and silk floss embroidery, which stands out like an applique and adds materially to the effect of the dress. There are no sleeves. The décolletage is quite low. Again she wore a Marie Louise hat, this time of black satin trimmed with a skeleton plume of Natter blue ostrich.

In direct contrast with dresses of this type are the models made by houses such as Redfern and Worth, who keep to dignity of line and conventional designs.

Mme. Daimoff, playing at the Renaissance theatre, wore a gorgeous dress of semi-conventional type made by Redfern. It was developed in silver brocade and mauve tulle, the latter forming a voluminous sash drape at one side of the back. She carried with this pale mauve and silver dress a brilliant jade green ostrich fan.

In summer suits the platted skirt continues popular. Many models are being developed in taffeta and satin. Skirts having platted panels are often accompanied by jackets with platted panels and neck flairs.

The fashion of catching the platted skirt in at the bottom by means of a restraining band is one of the features in summer tailor-mades. Beer has an interesting new model of this sort, with a loose box coat and a straight platted skirt developed in white serge with black trimmings. This house also shows a sport suit of khaki-colored serge, trimmed with stitched plaits, which pass around the bottom of the jacket, the hem of the skirt and the flaring edges of the sleeves. Flatly stitched plaits also form a yoke outline on the body of the jacket.

using this form of trimming, and it has met with great success. In many instances when ordering a simple one-piece dress two sashes are made, one in self-tone and one in contrast. The narrow belt of colored galalith is second in popularity, this form being used for belting coats, jackets and simple serge dresses. The shades most in demand are jade green, red and royal blue.

Frocks of Saten.

This is a season of varied types and many materials. The newest frocks are those made of saten in serviceable prints. A very striking model is made in two tones of red with gracefully cut tunic and wide collar and cuffs of white organdie.

New Sport Satin.

Among the new materials is a brand new fabric of sport satin backed with georgette crepe.

Fabric Hat Is Mode.

Consider the fabric hat. It is the mode of the moment.

Fashion Notes of Interest

Deep Cuffs and Choker Collars: Warm Colors; Turbans Promise to Be Fall Favorites.

Fall suits will have very deep cuffs and high choker collars.

Half way to the knees is the fashionable length for the suit coat.

Warm colors, such as taupe, rust color, greens and browns, are very prominent.

An attractive touch of color is given to a dark blue silk dress by several red leather roses at the girdle.

Parasols made of gingham have three tiny hemstitched ruffles on the edge, and are pagoda-shaped.

One of the pale blue organdie is fashion is trimmed with scattered roses in bright rose-shade wool embroidery. The waist has a chemise-like and puffed sleeves of shirred white organdie.

Crepe, crossbar dimities and cotton chambray make charming frocks, trimmed with tulle or flowers cut out of linen in contrasting color and appliqued on with wool stitching.

Turbans will be worn extensively this fall. It is said by fashion authorities. Duvelyn for street wear, panne and duvelyn for the afternoon, and combination of satin and mulline for evening wear will be the popular materials. Dark colors will predominate.

Stylish Collars.

Collars that encircle the back of the neck closely and then disappear at the sides are among the new styles of neckwear. The little flat turnovers that reach only across the front of a square-cut neck also are new and much favored.

Use of Laces.

It is said that fillet lace has reached the zenith of its popularity and that the vogue for Irish crochet and very wide silk laces is coming into first place, particularly for blouses.

Chronic Catarrh

Our manner of living makes us very susceptible to colds and a succession of colds causes chronic catarrh and a loathsome disease with which it is estimated that ninety-five per cent. of our adult population are afflicted. If you would avoid chronic catarrh you must avoid colds or having contracted a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is highly recommended as a cure for colds and

All Business Needs Bank Help

Business can no more be healthy without Banks, than a man without food or water. Don't imagine that only men of small means use banking help. The millionaire and the biggest corporations freely borrow from Banks. A bank's loanable funds largely come from deposits by the whole community. So every farmer, or other business man, should feel free to use those funds.

Remember, then, "This is Your Bank for Help."

PUBLIC SALE

-of-

REAL ESTATE

The undersigned having decided to discontinue her mercantile business will sell at Public Sale on Saturday, September 11th, 1920

at 2 p. m.

at the Middletown Hotel
Middletown, Del.

the following described Real Estate to-wit:

Two stores and dwellings, one occupied by myself and the other by Mr. C. W. Neff, located on East Main street, in a good business section of Middletown. The lot has a frontage on Main street, of 52 ft. 8 in. and a depth of 154 ft., and the building was erected in 1899. The store rooms are modern in every respect, and are large enough for the mercantile or any other line of business.
The two dwellings attached are cozy homes.
Each has three large rooms on first floor and pantry, the second floors have 9 sleeping rooms, with 2 baths, also 6 rooms on the third floor. The building is lighted throughout by electricity, and each dwelling has open stairways leading to the third floors.

I have occupied one store and the dwelling attached for the past 21 years, during which time I have established a profitable mercantile business therein.

Anyone interested in this property can consult the undersigned.

Terms made known on day of Sale.
